We Knew We Had a Good Thing in the Stock of Goods

We bought by electric light a few days essence. There is so much clapt-trap Clothing advertisements in vogne just now that we refrained from saying very much about the jurchase. We samply called the third control of the property of these goods in our windows and note the prices on them. We knew we would sell some of them. The warm weather left a doubt as to selling a great many now. The doubt is dispelled. Since the day we opened this purchase and placed them in our windows and store has been crowded with customers anxions to secure these unheard of bargains. We advise our friends who contemplate buying Fail Salts and Overcoats not to let this opportunity slip. It is only once in a long time that circumstances arise that cauble merchants to secure first-class Clothing that can be sold for less money than the cheeply gottecupy stuff that is floodling the market just tow.

Our $2, $2.50 and $3 Custom-Made

That we warraint to give satisfaction and cheerfully return the money if the satisfaction favor. Out of town mail orders—and of which we receive many-receive prompt attention. Look at our show-windows; none like them in the state.

A farmer, Washington Sand, had a large field of corn that needed cutting. He was ill and help was scarce. He left his sickhed Friday and cut a few shocks of corn. Neighbors saw him at work and knew he ought to be in bed. At night, which the fullmoon made almost day, Mr Sand's neighbors went into his cornfield, and before they left they had cut and shocked his crop. When the sick farmer went out to resume his labors the next morning it would have been difficult to convince him that the days of niracies have passed.

The parent bank, receiving deposits through its branches from many local-lites, would be able instantly and at almost no expense to transfer funds from localities where there were large deposited in the localities where there were large deposited in the localities where the conditions were received.

Advantageous as the branch bank system would probably prove to commercial men, it would be rastly more as to farmers. Merchants are depositing and borrowing all the time. There are every day deposits from one dealer which can be loaned to another, but the today of the localities when the loaned to another, but the today of the localities when the loaned to another, but the borrow a great deal at another would be rastly sided by such an equalization be rastly sided by such an equalization. borrow a great deal at another would be vastly sided by such an equalization of the demand-for loans and the means of gratifying them as would be afforded by central banks with widespread

The political significance of this is that the south has no interest in silver that the south has no interest in eiter coinage as such, but took up the free coinage issue under the impression that it would afford more currency, for which the section had an undoubted need: a banking aystem that would afford more currency, and especially more and chespec erective, would fully more and chespec erective, would fully every wind in a consequence of the controlle-ble.

Big and Little Joba.

When our fathers, in 1834, with a slight change in 1837, established the present ratio of coinage, they took an average of the price of silver in all this to be $3.0200 per ounce in gold. This made the ratio of coinage 15.988 to 1, which has been the ration since that time. They tried to make the legal ratio coincide with the true commercial ratio to the third decimal piace, or to one part in about 16.000. Now people talk seriously of ignoring one part in two or 9,000 out of 16,000. Such facts as these illustrate our wonderful growth in power since 1834, or at least in our own estimate of our power to overturn the natural laws of trade, for we have not yet actually made the experiment.

Ex-Gov. Horace Boles, of Iowe, is still sticking pins in the eixteen to one three of the silverites. In a letter made public on October 12 he discusses his new bullion basis theory and concludes as follows:

"It is said that no plan of the character would be in accord with the Chicago platform. That is true. But the Chicago platform has had like day in court before the tribunal of last resort. Must democrass, to be loyal, adhere to it forever? The objection is at variance with the whole theory of our form of government. If valid elections would settle nothing, majorities would cease once joined it would go on until one or one joined it would go on until one or the other of the parties to it was totally annihilated."
